

ANCONA TORPEDOED 258 ARE MISSING

Austrian Submarine Sinks Italian Liner in the Mediterranean. Bound from Naples for New York.

Cable dispatches from Rome and London account for only 324 of the passengers and sailors on the Italian liner Ancona, which was sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine while bound for New York. The liner carried 582 passengers and sailors. The cable reports leave 258 unaccounted for.

The American state department has instructed Ambassador Page at Rome to forward a full report immediately on the sinking of the Ancona. Rome advices list the souls aboard the Ancona when it sailed from Naples as follows: Passengers, 422; crew, 160. A London dispatch states that Lord's reports 54 persons landed by two of the Ancona's boats on the Tunisian coast, while Rome advices state that 270 have been landed at Bizerte.

Rome, Nov. 10.—At least 100 passengers and sailors are believed to have perished when the Italian liner Ancona was sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine. The death list may go over 200. Reports as to the loss of life received here early today were conflicting.

It is not yet known whether any Americans perished. One report estimated the loss of life at 100. Another said that 150 had probably perished, and a third accounted for only 270 out of the 422 passengers and 160 members of the crew on board, leaving 312 unaccounted for.

The Ancona was torpedoed by a submarine flying the Austrian colors after leaving Naples for New York. It was attacked south of Sicily and the survivors thus far accounted for were landed at Bizerte on the coast of Tunis.

The first reports of the destruction of the liner did not state whether the vessel had been given any warning but when it was learned that a number of survivors landed at Bizerte, Italian officials here declared their belief that the ship had not been warned.

As soon as news of the sinking of the Ancona arrived here the American embassy took steps to ascertain whether there was any American on board. A dispatch received from Naples this forenoon said it was believed that eleven Americans had taken passage in liner but it was not known whether all had sailed.

The opinion was expressed here today that the submarine which sank the Ancona was really a German vessel, though flying an Austrian flag. Italian warships have maintained a careful watch at the southern end of the Adriatic and it is regarded as improbable that any Austrian submarine could have escaped into the Mediterranean.

Reports received here stated that the Ancona was sunk by a "large submarine" and this led to the belief that one of the German super-submarines which recently entered the Mediterranean through the straits of Gibraltar attacked the Ancona. Though diplomatic relations between Germany and Italy have been severed, neither country has formally declared war, and this would account for the fact that an Austrian flag was flown by the submarine.

TWO "REMBRANDTS" LANDED IN JAIL

Late Tuesday afternoon Frederick W. Wilson and Clarence A. Meigs, two young men who for week have been soliciting orders for enlarging photographs, were arrested at the Mott rooming house No. 177 Wall street, by Sergeant Murray, Deputy Sheriff William Cohen and Detective A. W. Lynch of the Bureau Detective Agency. Wilson is wanted on a charge of forging a check for $200 in Jacksonville, Florida, and Meigs was arrested as being a suspicious character.

This morning Wilson was committed to the county jail for thirty days in default of furnishing bail in the sum of $5,000 on a charge of being a fugitive from justice when arraigned before Recorder Andrew Lang. The specific charge against Meigs was doing business under an assumed name without first registering as required by law. Meigs pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 or spend twenty days in the county jail.

Detective Lynch has been on the trail of Wilson for a long time and finally located him on this city and the detective asked the assistance of the local police in locating and arresting him. Chief Wood got in touch with Sheriff W. H. Dowling of Jacksonville, who wired back to hold Wilson until a warrant arrives. Extradition papers are also being made out.

As far as the local police know Meigs is not wanted elsewhere but as he was in company with Wilson it was thought best to arrest him. It was disclosed this morning when Meigs was arraigned that they had done considerable business in this city already and in Meigs's pocket a number of photographs of residents of New York and Staples street were found. They had also received a number of deposits ranging from fifty cents to one dollar, which Meigs said would be deducted from the bill rendered the patron when the work was completed.

Meigs was an extremely plausible young man and acknowledged that he had left Syracuse rather suddenly but he said he would be able to give a good explanation of why he did so. While he was being arraigned two young ladies also boarding at the Mott house and who according to the police are strangers in town came into the court room. They had first asked if they could talk with Recorder Lang in private and were told they could as soon as he had disposed of his docket of cases. While they were sitting in the rear of the court room Chief Wood asked Meigs if his wife was in the city and he replied no and in reply to a question of whether she was in the court room he turned around and after glancing at the two girls replied, "No."

The recorder then imposed the sentence and the two girls left the court room hastily and went uptown. From Meigs's explanation there is a big profit in the picture game, but just how much he did not say. It was brought out that he, in order to drum up trade used a scheme in the form of a lottery to attract the attention of a woman's attention. He said this scheme had been used in other cities and was not contrary to law. It consisted in having a large number of blank envelopes such as business firms generally use in placing the wages of their employees in. These envelopes Meigs would hold up to the woman when she answered the door bell and explain that if she was fortunate to draw the lucky envelope it would not cost her a cent to have the work of enlarging the photographs done. By this scheme he had found it much easier to secure orders from women than it otherwise would be the idea of drawing a lucky envelope seemed to appeal to them.

The name used by the young men were doing business was "The Rembrandt Art Institute, Chicago, Ill." Meigs explained that the man who formerly used this name was now out of business and he did not hesitate to use it but it was just an oversight on his part in not registering the name when he started to do business in this city.

The police have no evidence that Meigs or Wilson were perpetrating a fraud in securing orders for enlarging pictures and that those who had placed orders with the young men were being swindled and so that charge was not preferred against them. It would seem, however, that local householders would find it no pay better to have any enlarging work to be done performed by local photographers.

A very interesting meeting of the executive committee of the C. E. Society of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church was held at the home of the president, Miss Ethel Hull, Tuesday evening. Tickets will be on sale in a few days and everyone is cordially invited to attend, a good time is assured all.

MRS. CELIA DIAMOND, AND ASST. DIST. ATTYS. WILSON & GOLDSTEIN. OWNER OF CANDY FACTORY WHERE TWELVE DIED IN FIRE, UNDER CROSS EXAMINATION.

The picture shows, left to right, Mrs. Celia Diamond, owner of the burned candy factory in Brooklyn, where twelve girls and men lost their lives in the fire on Saturday, being cross examined by Assistant District Attorneys Wilson and Goldstein. Mrs. Diamond and her husband were arrested after the fire. It is charged that the deaths occurred because of a disobedience of fire regulations and the continued neglect to make several changes ordered by the fire inspectors.

Four investigations are now under way to fix the blame for the loss of life. Mrs. Diamond is the owner of the building and the fire commission on Jan. 7 ordered certain changes which were never made.

NEW EMPEROR CROWNED IN JAPAN

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Kyoto, Japan, Nov. 10.—Yoshihito was crowned Emperor of Japan today in a glittering ceremony which combined all the pomp of the modern world with the weird and impressive rites come down from the dim beginnings of the national life. With shouts of "banzi" (meaning "ten thousand years") Count Okuma, the venerable Premier, led the multitude in acclaiming the one hundred and twenty-second mortal ruler of Nippon.

The Emperor has really ruled since July 31, 1912, the day after his father, Mutsuhito, died; but not until the ceremonies now taking place in this ancient capital of Japan have his ancestors been regularly informed of his accession.

In the morning the Emperor presented offerings to his ancestors and worshipped them, and informed them that he had inherited their throne. In the afternoon he took his seat on the throne and by this action announced his accession to his subjects and to the representatives of foreign countries.

At dawn attendants began to decorate the sanctuary where the imperial shrine has been placed with new bamboo blinds, new silk portieres and new silk curtains. The public began to gather round the palace gates at an early hour to watch the incessant stream of dignitaries arriving in every kind of conveyance from automobile to "rickshaws."

Towards nine o'clock the state carriages of the ambassadors with their escorts of Lancers began to stream over the drawbridge in a rapid roll. The foreign representatives, the Japanese nobility of high rank, ministers of state, and high officers of the army and navy were conducted to a new assembly hall erected for their accommodation in the courtyard of the palace.

Strikingly conspicuous in the glittering mass of uniforms and decorations was the republican simplicity of the American representatives, George Guthrie, the Ambassador, and his secretary, Post Wheeler. In a smaller separate hall the imperial princesses and princesses were gathered at the same time. All were punctual and there was a short pause of waiting before the Emperor, in military uniform, joined his relatives. The Emperor was at once invested with ceremonial dress, consisting of robe and belt of silk white silk, and at the same time the princesses and high officials in immediate attendance changed into Japanese ceremonial costume of kimono and sandals with two handed swords.

While this was going on in the privacy of the smaller hall, men armed with bows and arrows and swords advanced to the gates and took up their posts as guardians. These wore short blue tunics, covered with brocade surcoats, and bright scarlet leggings. Two rows of men, also in archaic attire, took up their stand beside cones which had been arranged in the courtyard, and at some distance another body guarded an old style armor, consisting of bundles of swords in brocade bags, bows, arrows and quivers, halberds, spears and shields. All were standing in stiff lines, motionless and silent as a picture. When at a signal from the drums and gongs, the assembly hall was thrown open and the ambassadors and nobles were conducted to their allotted positions to view the ceremony at the imperial shrine.

BRIAND REFUTES PEACE RUMORS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, Nov. 10.—"France has received no peace proposals whatever from any source. We hold the view that this is no time to discuss peace terms. The war must go on until victory has been obtained."

With these unequivocal words Aristide Briand, French premier and foreign minister, finally disposed of the latest crop of American-European peace rumors. When asked to state his opinion of the origin of the rumors and why peace was impossible at this time, Premier Briand said: "Suggestions are thrown out in this city and in that. By whom? I have no useful purpose. They lead to nothing. They cannot lead to anything."

"It is common knowledge among the allies that Germany's resources are declining and the rumors of peace may be straws which show how the wind is blowing in the central empires. But I repeat that France does not stand for premature peace. The French people would not accept it; the army would not hear of it until the objects which include, notably the liberation of invaded territories comprising Alsace and Lorraine, and the smashing of German militarism, are attained."

"We are now in the full flush of our armed strength. The spirit of our glorious army was never higher. The nation behind the army is solidly fitted for the prosecution of our aims and all Frenchmen feel complete victory will crown the deathless efforts of our arms if only we unfalteringly pursue our purpose."

"Why then talk of peace?" Premier Briand said that his casting of the censorship was based on the principle of allowing news in the papers of France and abroad except what was judged clearly inimical to the allies military and diplomatic interests. When it was pointed out that through inadequate press facilities the French war office allowed correspondents in Germany to circulate first detailed stories of a great French victory in Champagne, thus completely biasing neutral opinion on the results of that battle, Premier Briand said: "I will see that that does not happen again."

And then he added, smilingly: "So America thinks the feats of the French army are not sufficiently advertised. Well! and to think we used to be represented the most vainglorious, boastful nation! It seems so really as suffering from an excess of modesty. However, your criticism is valuable, and I will make it my business to see immediately that America and other neutral nations are adequately informed of the results of our future military efforts."

BETHLEHEM STEEL SHOPS BURNED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

South Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 10.—Fire early today practically destroyed number four machine shop of the Bethlehem Steel Company. Only the skeleton of the big building is standing. Machinery and war material in the building was worth several million dollars. How the fire started is not known.

The fire started in what is known as the boring mill section of the plant among a lot of oil. The fire spread rapidly and soon the whole building was aflame. The entire fire department of the steel works was called out, as were the departments of four neighboring boroughs, but their efforts were mainly extended toward saving adjoining buildings.

In machine shop No. 4 are manufactured guns of various calibers from beginning to end. In the building were 800 guns and about 150 of the guns were ready to ship. Some of the guns were for England and her allies; others were for the United States government. The value of these guns alone is said to be several million dollars. There were about 1,000 machines of different kinds in the building. These machines are worth from $400 up to several thousand dollars apiece and it is estimated that the value of the machinery alone is several million dollars.

This does not include the value of the building which is about 200 feet wide, 700 feet long and four stories high. More than 2,000 men are employed in the building on day and night shifts. About 800 men were working when the fire broke out and so rapidly did it spread that some of the employees had to make their escape by means of ropes from the different stories.

General alarms were not only sounded in the steel works, but throughout the neighboring towns of Bethlehem, Fontaine Hill and Northampton Heights. From workmen it was learned that the fire started among oil near the entrance to the plant. This oil flows in conduits and is thus used to gather up flying chips which escape in the operation of gun boring. There was only a brief speck of it at first, but when workmen tried to put out by throwing water, then followed a mighty flash and up leaped a flame as high as the structure and which enveloped the whole of the building. Floor after floor leaped down with valuable machinery collapsed. Some heavy losers are many of the 2,000 employees who lost all their private tools.

No injuries or deaths have been reported so far. The fire will probably burn all day.

Application for her release from jail was made to County Judge James Jenkins in his chambers and was granted on the attorney's promise that the woman would be produced when wanted. Mrs. Brighton is said to have returned to her home when she married Edward Brighton. She says he abused her and she left him, going to Ellenville. There she met Delancey and married him when she received a report, which subsequently proved false, that Brighton was dead.

HOW POLICE SIGNAL SYSTEM OPERATES

The police signal system being installed by the Gamewell Company is rapidly nearing completion and already part of the system is in working order and the installation is expected to be completed within the next ten days. The police are having the same difficulty experienced by the fire department at the time the present fire alarm box system was installed by would-be jokers breaking the glass in the box and turning in a false alarm. So far eight or nine glasses have been broken in the boxes about town and it will go hard with the culprits if they are caught as they will be dealt with to the full extent of the law.

The signal system is one of the most up-to-date along the river and each box is numbered and is equipped with a light and bell and a telephone. If headquarters at the city hall desires to get in touch with the patrolman on post the bell is rung or the light on the box is lit and the policeman responds by telephoning in to see what is wanted. Or if the officer needs assistance he simply calls up headquarters on the box telephone. Private citizens wishing to get in touch with a policeman can break the glass in the box and turn the switch, which rings in an alarm at headquarters. Under the system each patrolman reports at a certain hour by ringing in and a record of the call is made automatically on a white strip of paper at headquarters.

There are twenty of these signal system boxes installed in various parts of the town as follows:

Washington avenue and North Front street.
Washington avenue and Warren street.

They don't stay thin long

Why do physicians recommend H-O Oatmeal so strongly for children?

It is because H-O builds flesh and creates heat and energy in just the proportions needed to replace the flesh, heat and energy used up in study and play. It ranks next to mother's milk in its balance of nutrients.

And so we say, "they don't stay thin long," when breakfast begins with a big bowl of H-O and equal care is exercised in choosing the balance of their daily food.

One other thing—that's flavor. Many children who do not like rolled oats take from the start to H-O.

The H-O superiority of flavor is due to our exclusive process of steam-cooking. For over two hours our oats cook in sealed cookers—developing the rich, full, oat flavor.

This not only makes for deliciousness—it means as well that you need cook H-O but 20 minutes to serve it completely prepared for easy assimilation.

Why not serve it tomorrow?

MERRITT VERDICT AFTER FOUR HOURS

The jury in the assault action brought by Arthur H. Merritt of Highland against the New York, Highland and Poughkeepsie Traction Co. was out for four hours, including an hour spent at lunch. It retired at 11:30 o'clock on Tuesday forenoon, after hearing an able and impartial charge by Justice G. B. H. Hasbrouck, and filed into the court room at 3:30, reporting a verdict of $1,000 for the plaintiff. Merritt sued for $5,000 personal injuries, alleged to have been sustained when he was ejected from a trolley car following a dispute over fares for himself, wife and Mr. and Mrs. Ransing.

William D. Brinnier, for the defendant company, moved that the verdict be set aside on the ground that it was excessive and contrary to the evidence. The motion was denied, and the court granted the usual stay of judgment for 30 days pending determination by the attorneys whether or not to institute appeal.

The fact that Merritt practically has recovered from his injuries, that he was not incapacitated from performing his duties in the Highland National Bank for a very long period, that his earnings have not decreased, and that there was a difference of opinion among surgeons who testified at the trial as to whether Merritt's leg was broken or whether he suffered merely lacerations, is regarded by persons who followed the trial as the reasons for the reduced verdict found by the jury, which under the court's charge evidently decided that the $5,000 damage was used by trolley employees in ejecting Merritt, regardless of whether or not his fare had been paid.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Heide Moore of Kingston is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Calvin Cutler, on Broadway.

Miss Mildred Tocker of Eldyville was the guest of the Misses Florence and Ella Lapine Tuesday.

Mrs. S. B. Van Wageningen of Sleightsburgh spent Tuesday in New York city.

The fair and turkey supper given in Pythian Hall Tuesday was a grand success. The turkey supper was well patronized by home folks and Kingstonians and was thoroughly enjoyed. The fancy articles were numerous and beautiful. The booth was beautifully decorated in "Poinsettias." The domestic booth had a large variety of canned goods and delicious fruit punch. The mystery booth was also attractive to the younger ones. The candy booth was loaded with tasty home made candy and sweets. The handkerchief booth had pretty handkerchiefs, which sold readily. The whole affair was one of the best ever held by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church.

The entertainment under the auspices of Mrs. E. H. Booth, Mrs. G. W. Shultis and Mrs. S. P. Tinnie, was well attended and too much praise cannot be given these faithful ladies with their able assistants for entertaining the people in such a pleasing way. Special prize should be given the Yankee Doodle Boys and the Making of the Flag Girls. The supper this evening will be served at 5:30 o'clock and will be a chowder and salad supper, to which you are all most cordially invited, the price being in reach of all, 25 cents. The entertainment will commence at 8 o'clock. The District School, a farcical entertainment, in three scenes, will be presented. The program was announced in Monday's Freeman. Admission, 15 cents. Everybody come and bring your friends with you. Come and have a hearty laugh. Doyle's orchestra that played so acceptably Tuesday evening, will entertain us with their melodious strains again this evening.

The annual fair of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will be held in the Sunday school room of the church on the evenings of November 17 and 18. Supper will be served both evenings of the fair, the one on the first evening being a chicken supper, and entertainments will also be given in the church auditorium. All those who have fancy articles for that booth are requested to leave them at the home of the chairlady of that committee, Mrs. John Lampmann, any time before the opening of the fair.

Tense Moments in Court.

There were a few moments of tenseness in supreme court on Tuesday afternoon when Attorney Antos Van Eten, for the Nitro Powder Co., engaged in the cross-examination of Charles Kastner, at one time a foreman in the employ of the concern, who was called as a witness by the plaintiff in William Trainor's damage action, stopped suddenly and told the witness "not to look at" District Attorney William D. Cunningham. Trainor's attorney, before replying to questions, Mr. Cunningham was on his feet, instantly to object, declaring that what the opposing lawyer had said was "highly improper." Mr. Van Eten reiterated that witness seemingly made a practice of glancing at Mr. Cunningham before answering queries. The lawyers were about to have a wordy passage of arms when Justice Hasbrouck brought his gavel down with a resounding whack, and the incident was closed by the court ordering, on Mr. Cunningham's motion, that Mr. Van Eten's remark be stricken from the record. The justice said he was competent to observe the action of the witness.

Highland Tabernacle Sold.

Walter Hasbrouck as auctioneer on Monday sold the Tabernacle at Highland to J. P. Whitely, the clothing store, for $200, while the seats were sold to W. E. Wilcox for $50.

Glenwood

Glenwoods are always Brim Full of New Wrinkles

The Glenwood Balanced Baking Damper is far ahead of any other—it is as positive as the turning of a railroad switch—open to start the fire, closed to bake—just this one damper for kindling or baking and best all, it can't warp or stick.

The Glenwood Revolving Coal Grate is easy to shake at all times, and simply fine for removing clinkers. It is triangular in shape, with three different sides for wear.

The Glenwood Sectional Top is interchangeable—cross pieces can not warp—a wash boiler can be placed at the back as well as in front for quick heating, leaving the front holes free for cooking.

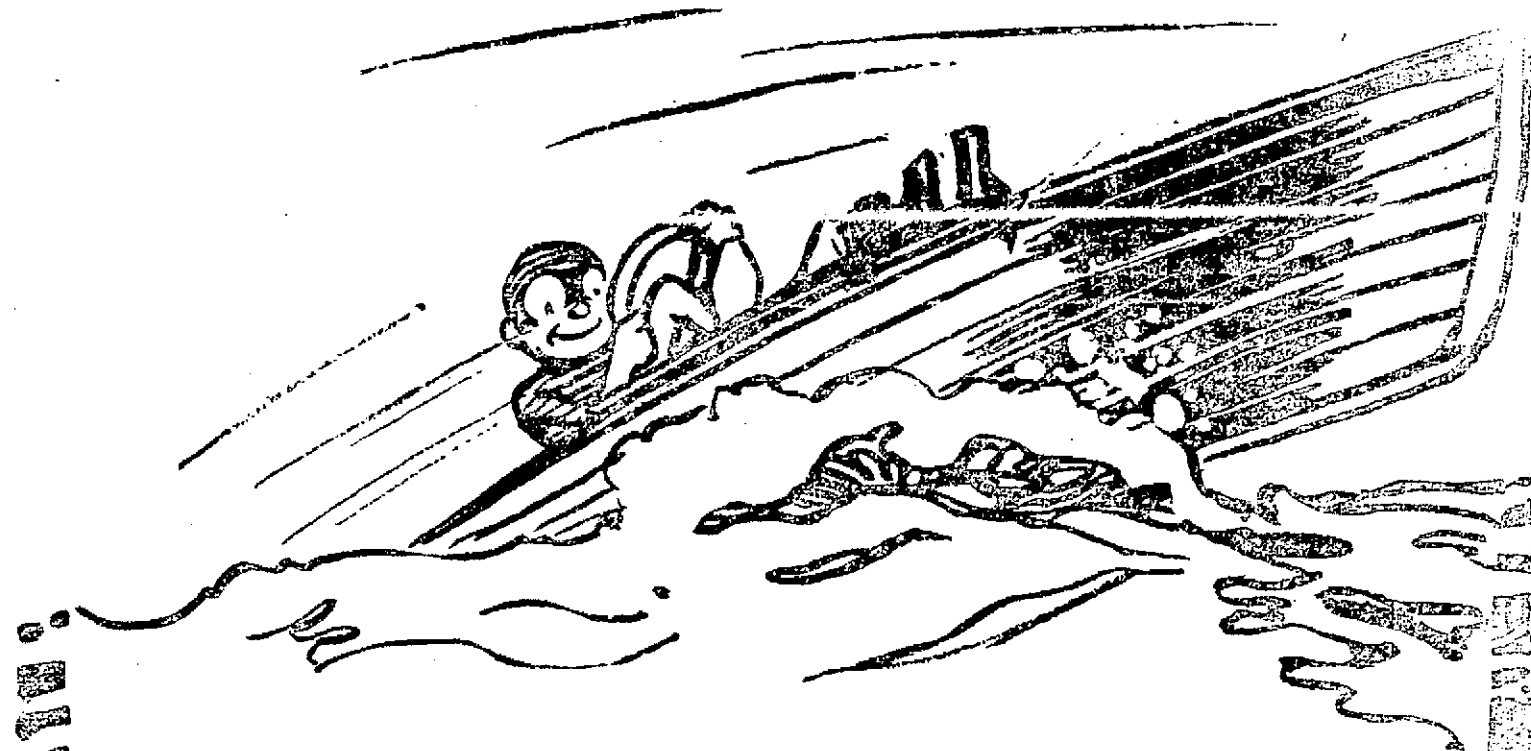

The Glenwood Shelf Under Oven Door is not stationary—it automatically raises and lowers as oven door is opened or closed. It is always level with oven bottom—a great convenience when basting meats or removing food.

The Ash Pan rests on a roller bearing frame—just open door and it rolls out at the slightest touch, neat and clean.

Glenwood Iron is smooth and perfect—the easiest of any to clean—a real delight to the most exacting housekeeper.

FIRST HAND NEWS FROM WAR ZONE

In a recent conversation with one who had just returned from England and France many facts of unusual interest, because little known, were brought to light, and an intimate knowledge of certain conditions gained. Among the rank and file of the soldiers there is not that fire of enthusiasm that marked our Civil War, for the reason that the causes of the war are too vague, and the end to be won too general in its character to rouse that amount of partisanship and fervor on the part of the masses to fire them with that patriotism that makes for furious fighting.

Everywhere the work being done by the American hospitals, surgeons, physicians and nurses, is profoundly appreciated, especially by the wounded men. The highest possible tribute was paid to the French soldiers, among whom, whether of the working class or men higher up, was found always a genuineness of courtesy and respect that could well be emulated the world over. Not only was this courtesy and consideration shown to those in authority at the hospitals, but among the soldiers in their regard for each other. It was told that when it was known in a ward that some badly wounded fellow soldier was to be added to the number in the ward, shades were drawn, quiet prevailed and "fall were sick until the new patient was better." This oneness of the men was considered as a prime factor in the efficiency of their fighting, for it appeared to be an inherent temperamental characteristic. That these men have lived clean, wholesome lives was evidenced by the fact, that being given two or three days' sleep, conditions of cleanliness and good food, no matter how serious the wounds, the great majority recovered and rapidly once they began to mend. A cheerful philosophy of making the best of things marked the French soldier, adding not a little to the speed of his recovery. During convalescence these men do all sorts of clever work with their hands, making fancy articles or toys that may be sold for the good of the cause. Owing to the manner of warfare in the year of our Lord—what irony—1915, there are a very great many fractured jaws, all bad cases. A deep admiration for the quiet humanity of the stolid-looking French soldier, especially of the peasant classes, was expressed. After battles, where they are able to do so, these women dig rude graves, often lining the roadside, and by almost superhuman strength drag the dead soldiers into them, giving them as decent and tender a burial as they are able to give. The graves in many instances are marked out by stones, shells, etc., while a tightly sealed bottle will contain whatever of information concerning the dead youth or man, it has been possible to obtain. Each soldier is identified by a chain bracelet worn on the wrist and bearing his name and number. Often times this is his only mark of identification, and it is preserved. Where possible, flowers mark the graves. Elsewhere the land is scarred and seamed with trenches, etc., buildings have been demolished, and there is the dreary aspect of destruction on every hand. The soldiers receive excellent care, for the most part at the hospital bases in the cities, the greatest suffering being in the small towns or near the front, where supplies and women nurses are not to be found. The idea was expressed that the American aid would be more efficient in what it could accomplish for the wounded soldiers, with more satisfaction to the contributors if a more specific plan of work could be adopted. If each community, say county or large city, would raise the necessary sum of money to send one nurse to one certain hospital unit in the war zone, and then make contributions as suggested and needed, according to the reports furnished by such nurse, far more definite good could be accomplished than by the present general scheme of giving indefinitely.

A Good Thing Appreciated.

Proof that Kingston theater-goers appreciate clean humor and recognized ability was furnished by the size of the audience which witnessed "The Peasant Girl" at the Kingston opera house, Tuesday night. "The Peasant Girl" is a combination of comic opera, grand opera and drama. The book is by Leo Stein, author of "The Merry Widow," the music is by Oscar Neiball, and the lyrics are by Herbert Reynolds and Howard Atteridge. There is rhythm and melody to the music, and throughout the entire production there is nothing to which exception might be taken as to the and institutions. The production unfolds over with wit and humor. The possibilities presented, have taken advantage of every scene to furnish acts that excite laughter. Edith Thayer played the star role. She has played here before in "The Firefly" and in her ability as an actress must be added pronounced ability to display to its best advantage a rich soprano voice full of delicate and sympathetic expression. Frank Benson, a comic opera comedian of wide reputation, was one of the funniest performers who has ever appeared here and both these leaders were well supported by a strong cast.

Victimized Rhinebeck Man?

Rev. Monroe, colored, is being held by the Poughkeepsie police on the statement of his wife that when he met her in Tenafly, N. J., he compelled her to lead an immoral life to aid in his support. He is also held on a petit larceny charge, as is his wife. It is alleged that Monroe and his wife took $20 from Nathaniel Collins, 70 years old, a veteran of Rhinebeck, Saturday night. Collins was in Poughkeepsie at the time.

NITRO POWDER CO. WORKERS TESTIFY

When the trial of the $15,000 damage action of William Trainor against the Nitro Powder Co. of Kingston was resumed in supreme court this morning, the plaintiff recalled to the stand and said he could not say whether he cut through or above the spot of "oil," which really was nitro-glycerine, which he had spilled on his apron while carrying two buckets of the substance. He had been warned of the inflammability of the "oil" and sought to cut off the corners of his apron, when an explosion occurred, in which he lost the thumb and two fingers of his left hand and had the right eye so badly damaged that it had to be removed a few months later.

Charles Kastner, foreman of the mixing house at the time Trainor was employed at the plant in July and August, 1911, was recalled and said that in the slips issued by Superintendent Ballan for different materials, nitro-glycerine was designated as "oil." The substance always was referred to as that.

The plaintiff contended that he had been given no information regarding the dangerous nature of the "oil," that if he had been given proper warning he would not have used a stone in ridding his apron of a spot. The defense, on the other hand, claimed that Trainor had been given full and ample notice of the dangers of his employment and that he had had every opportunity to learn of the real nature of "oil," which he carried in pails to the mixing house.

District Attorney Cunningham, who is assisted by Frederick G. Traver, announced at 10 o'clock that the plaintiff rested his case; and Amos Van Etten, assisted in the defense by Joseph M. Fowler and Emanuel Metzger, asked for a dismissal of the suit on several grounds. "I will deny the motion at this time," said Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck, following the course of Justice Cochrane at the first trial last March.

A. W. Nibelius of Kingston, the first witness called by the defense, said he has been a chemist of explosives for 22 years. For a long period he was successively with the Forsyth, DuPont and Keystone Powder Companies, and recently he has entered the employ of the Nitro Powder Co. He told in detail of the mixing of materials in the making of powder and dynamite. He denied there was danger of a spot of nitro-glycerine burning the flesh and declared powder mill employees were rough aprons chiefly "to protect their clothes." During his cross-examination, Mr. Cunningham reprimanded the witness, who was told not to ask the lawyer questions and argue with him. Mr. Nibelius answered questions to which opposing counsel objected before the court had time to sustain or overrule the objections.

Supt. Ballan on Stand.

Ernest Sullivan of New York City, in the employ of the Boston Artificial Leather Co., who in 1911 was superintendent and chemist for the Nitro Powder Co., said he told Trainor of the dangerous nature of his work and identified a paper signed by the plaintiff in which the latter agreed to assume the risks. He said there was always plenty of soda solution about the plant to be used in cleaning up spots of nitro-glycerine. He testified there were "danger" signs on buildings all over the plant. Trainor, the latter told him the explosion ensued while he was trying to cut a string from his apron.

J. G. Mathur, at various times employed by powder concerns in Sweden, Canada and the United States, and latterly connected with the Nitro Powder Co., said he knew nothing about the accident to Trainor, or having been absent from the plant at the time. He testified regarding methods, practices and conditions at the plant.

Frank Gumaer of the town of Esopus, employed by the Nitro Company in 1911 as bookkeeper, foreman and timekeeper, testified that Trainor was given a copy of the company's rules when or soon after he entered its employ. Copies also were posted on buildings, and there were danger signs. Witnesses could not say whether it was Henry McCausland, now in Canada, and not Trainor, who once dropped "oil" on a bridge and had been given a warning by Supt. Ballan.

Edward Winchell, a powder plant employee, said that just after the accident Trainor exclaimed: "Eddie, I've ruined myself—I'm cutting a string from my apron." Harry Chandler, an employee for seven years, quoted Trainor to the same effect.

Trainor, recalled after the defense rested, denied the testimony of Vincent Coffey, employed with Henry McNamara, his uncle, in his state road work, worked at the Nitro plant in 1911. He was called in rebuttal by the plaintiff, and Mr. Abrey and Mr. Kastner were recalled. They said they saw no soda solution.

At 1 o'clock the court took a recess until 2 o'clock for the summing up by the attorneys and submission of the case to the jury by Justice Hasbrouck.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 10.—There was renewed pressure against the stock market at the opening this morning, reflecting further efforts on the part of two important bear operators to force liquidation, but before many minutes pronounced strength developed. Steel common assumed the leadership of an upward movement. That stock, which closed yesterday at 84½, was offered at 83½ as soon as the gong sounded, but after sales at that price aggressive buying caused a brisk rise to 84½. The rest of the list generally followed, although movements in specialties covered a wider range. Studebaker opened 4½ lower at 143½, but immediately rallied to 150. Southern Pacific was in good demand, moving up ½ to 100½. Allis Chalmers continued pressed for sale at concessions, yielding 1½. Erie, Union Pacific and Reading, after early declines, were in brisk request, and easily recovered their losses.

There was a good demand for stocks in the late forenoon, and advances were noted in many of the leading issues. Steel common rose to 85½ against 84½ at the close yesterday. Canadian Pacific rose to 133½, a net gain of 1½ points. Reading rose ¾ to 81½, Union Pacific ¾ to 135, Northern Pacific ¼ to 115 and Southern Pacific continued in demand, selling at 101½, a net gain of 1½ points. American Car and Foundry advanced a point to 79, Anaconda 1½ to 84½, American Telephone and Telegraph a point to 117½, and Westinghouse advanced 2 points from its low level to 66½. Crucible Steel and Studebaker, however, did not share in the upturn, the latter selling at 148½, and the former at 72, a loss of about 2 points for both issues. Money 1½ per cent.

There were wide fluctuations in the specialties in the late afternoon. A number of issues sold at the highest prices touched in a number of years. Southern Pacific advanced to 103½. Union Pacific, which opened at 135½, moved up to 137½. Rock Island rose to 20½; Canadian Pacific to 186½ and Reading to 82½. Baldwin Locomotive sold at 103½ and then rallied to 111½. Crucible Steel, after selling at 67½, rose to 71½. Steel common sold at 85½. Sales of stocks to 2 o'clock were 982,290 shares.

The market closed strong after violent fluctuations earlier in the afternoon. Urgent efforts were made to buy back stocks sold after the publication of the United States Steel tonnage statement, but the supply was scarce and indications were that many stocks had gone out of the street. Steel common rose to 87, a gain of over three points from the start. Anaconda advanced from 82½ to 85½ and Studebaker after selling at 142½ rose to 151. Baldwin Locomotive rose to 106½ against 104½ earlier. General advances were noted throughout the rest of the list. Government bonds unchanged; others strong.

$4,000,000 DAMAGE BY STEEL PLANT FIRE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

South Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 10.—With an estimated damage from three to four millions, the fire which today destroyed the No. 4 machine shop at the Bethlehem Steel Company, in which war munitions were being made for England and the United States, was gotten under control at noon and at 2:30 was practically out, although heavy streams of water are still being poured into the ruined building with its valuable machinery.

The steel company issued a statement saying the blaze was due to a crossed circuit wire which ignited oil in the boring of the first floor. No statement of damages has been issued by the company. The destroyed building was recently rebuilt, enlarged and equipped at a cost of more than three million dollars. Eight hundred guns were in process of manufacture among other material. These guns are valued at nearly a million dollars. As the building is ruined and machinery and guns also ruined or badly damaged, a conservative estimate will place the loss at from three to four millions. All of the men employed in the machine shop will be given work elsewhere in the plant.

In order to reach Kingston in time to play the matinee performance of "Everywoman" at the Kingston opera house next Tuesday, the company and scenery will be sent to Kingston on a special six-car train. "Everywoman" will be given afternoon and night. It is a tremendous dramatic spectacle with symphonic music, combining the attractive elements of drama, opera and musical comedy. Henry W. Savage fished it out of thousands of manuscripts submitted to him by unknown writers and its career since has been remarkable.

TO WIPE OUT MOSQUITOES.

Department of Health Considers Regulation to Eliminate Them.

New York, Nov. 10.—The first step toward the elimination of mosquitoes from the metropolitan district of New York state, outside of New York city, was taken Tuesday when the state public health council held a hearing at the New York Academy of Medicine, on the proposed regulation for the state sanitary code. Some fifty representatives of local health boards, health officers and property owners appeared. This regulation, when enacted, will not apply to New York city.

The consensus of opinion at the hearing today was that no effort for the elimination of mosquitoes could be successful that depended entirely upon individual property owners. The speakers believed that the state should give local authorities power to compel the elimination of mosquito-breeding spots in large areas. Dr. Alvah H. Doty, former health officer of the port, who led the successful movement to eliminate mosquitoes from Staten Island, brought out the point that the anopheles mosquito, the medium for malarial infection, can travel ten to fifteen miles. This long cruising radius makes the application of local measures to small areas ineffective.

No definite action was taken on the new regulation for the code. Action was postponed at the request of several of the speakers so that suggestions for strengthening it could be submitted to the council. The tentative regulation provided that:

"It shall be the duty of every owner, lessee, agent, contractor, or other person having the management or control of any salt marsh land, inland swamp, stagnant lot, abandoned excavation, or any other place where or upon which either salt or fresh water becomes stagnant and in which said stagnant water mosquitoes are bred and developed, to fill in or drain the same, or employ such other methods, as will prevent at all times the breeding of mosquitoes in or on such places."

Under the authority granted the council by the public health law to make its regulations effective in restricted areas, the tentative regulation provides for all of Nassau county; the towns of Huntington, Babylon, Smithtown and Islip in the county of Suffolk; the towns and villages in Westchester county bordering on Long Island sound and all cities of the state. It is further provided that it may take effect in other municipalities, provided the health boards shall adopt a resolution to that effect.

It is estimated that there are 35,500 acres of mosquito-breeding marsh lands in the sections of the state to which the new section of the code, when enacted, will apply. At an estimate of $10 an acre for draining these, this will bring the total cost to $350,000.

The cost of eliminating these marsh pest holes is to be apportioned in the manner provided in the public health law. The local board of health shall declare such places to be a nuisance, and the owner shall bear the expense of drainage or otherwise suppressing such nuisance. If, however, the suppression of the nuisance is a benefit to the public generally, over a large area, the local board may appoint a commission of commissioners who shall proceed with the elimination of the nuisance, and apportion the expense upon the property benefited.

Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, state commissioner of health, presided at the hearing. The other members of the council present were Homer Folks, Dr. T. Mitchell Prudden, Professor Henry N. Ogden and Dr. Wilhelm Gaertner.

James N. Rosenberg of Rockaway, representing the Peninsula Mosquito Extermination Association, the Rev. Dr. Oscar Maddaus of Mineola, Dr. C. B. Davenport of Cold Spring Harbor, representing the Nassau County Association, favored the enactment of state regulations for dealing with this problem, but Mr. Rosenberg requested delay of at least two weeks so that he could submit recommendations for a more far-reaching and more drastic regulation. R. W. Gize, of the Union County of N. J., Mosquito Commission, and James S. Brooks, consulting engineer of the Essex County N. J. Mosquito Commission, said that the work of New Jersey, conducted under state regulation, had been extremely successful.

Dr. Doty, drawing upon his experience on Staten Island, said that nothing short of absolute authority to deal with all mosquito-breeding swamps, wherever found and regardless of the desires of the owners, would be effective. He pointed out that one swamp of an acre might nullify the elimination of all other breeding spots over a large area.

Dr. H. C. Colding, health officer of New Rochelle, gave further testimony to the truth of this assertion. He pointed out that the mosquito extermination work of New Rochelle had been nullified absolutely by the failure to eliminate the breeding spots at Manaroneck and in the Pelham Bay section of New York city.

HARVESTING SACRED RICE.

GETTING READY FOR JAP CORONATION.

This picture shows the harvesting of the sacred rice from which wine for the Japanese coronation ceremonies, now in full swing, was made. The rice is planted under religious rites, tended during its growth by Shinto priests, protected by the little paper prayers strung on wires surrounding the fields (shown in the picture), and finally harvested by special coolies, dressed according to an ancient custom and attended by priests. The water for the wine is drawn from a sacred well at Kyoto.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE. MAL SCOVILL.

WILL BE IN YALE LINEUP AGAINST PRINCETON.

Mal Scovill.

Despite his injuries, Mal Scovill, the best back which Yale has outside of Captain Alex Wilson, will be in the Eli lineup against Princeton next Saturday. Scovill's thumb was dislocated in the game against Brown on Saturday and his nose was broken two weeks before.

Scovill at fullback has proved to be the best line plunger on the Yale team this year. His absence after being hurt in the Brown game was distinctly noticeable.

Scovill is a former Dartmouth star.

A Japanese Custom.

On the anniversary of a Japanese boy's birthday his parents present him with a large paper fish made of a carefully patterned bag, with a hoop of proper dimensions forming the mouth. A string is tied to the hoop, and the fish is hoisted to a pole on the roof of the house. Then the wind rushing through causes the fish to swell out to the proper size and shape and gives it the appearance of swimming in the air. A Japanese boy carefully preserves every fish thus given to him. One can tell by the number of them that swim from the same pole how many birthdays the little fellow has celebrated.—London Telegraph.

London and Garlic.

Curious how the old time old wives' remedies come back by way of the modern doctor. Garlic has been practically banished from England for centuries, and the smell of it is the first greeting of the Calais landing stage. France has found garlic a most valuable antiseptic. London, fumbling among its memories, finds Garlick hill and a church named Garlickhith. But since it posed as a remedy for the great plague garlic has ceased its smell in London.—London Tailor.

Remedy for a Cold.

When you feel a cold coming on, take a half teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of white sugar, mix thoroughly with about three tablespoonfuls of cold water and drink.

Fruits in Cold Storage.

Experiments by scientists have shown that fruits breathe and that cold storage delays their ripening by causing them to breathe more slowly than normally.
